

Heavy Price Increase Seen In Leather Sales

The sudden decontrol of prices for hides, skins, and leather on Monday, Sept. 15, caused considerable speculation concerning the effect on shoe prices, and shoe manufacturers were, and still are, in something of a quandary. The Era and Express contacted executives of the three major leather companies in the district in an effort to gain as clear a picture of the situation as possible.

According to one executive, Canadian prices both on calf skins and on finished products from calf skins, are expected to rise immediately to world market prices, which means that they will jump from 150 to 180 percent. However, because labor costs and sole leather costs also figure into the price of shoes, manufacturers have been estimating that shoe prices will probably rise about 35 percent.

"In November, 1946, the United States, which had previously had ceiling prices on calf skins, decontrolled, and from that time until September 15 of this year, prices had continued to go up until they had risen about 180 percent above the controlled price. In the meantime, Canada had retained the ceilings.

"In January, one increase of five cents on calf skins and three cents on hides was allowed in Canada, and at the same time a 15 percent increase in the price of leather was allowed, but these are the only increases in Canadian prices since November, 1941.

Exports Halted
"Another fact which is aggravating the situation is that the calf skin producing areas of the world are not now exporting raw calf skins. Prior to the war, many skins came from France, Poland, Italy, Sweden, and the Baltics. Now France will not allow the exportation of skins and of course Russian-controlled countries are completely out, as they are for every product. The result is that there is a general world shortage of the raw materials for calf leather.

"Hides have been under control too, and are now coming up to world prices. However, Argentina has many thousands of hides which were originally offered for sale in England, but due to the ban on sterling convertibility Argentina may eventually sell to the United States and Canada, which may lower world market prices of hides. Sole leather would naturally be affected by this.

"The strikes at the meat packing plants are naturally creating a shortage of hides and skins. Decontrol came at an untimely moment because there are no hides or skins available from packing plants, and none being produced. There is a shortage of leather in the United States, which along with the duty factor makes temporary importation improbable.

"It will be impossible to hold leather at the controlled price, because the leather companies are going to have to pay more for the skins — those who have skins are going to advance them to world prices. The shoe manufacturers are upset because they do not know what the reaction of the people will be to the advanced prices of shoes. It is impossible to anticipate what the reaction will be." He said that the supplies which the tanners have on hand at present will not be adequate for long, but he declined to enlarge on the statement.

"Packers' skins were controlled at about 30 cents a pound," he said. "In the United States, at the moment of decontrol in Canada, similar skins averaged 85 cents a pound. Hides, which were controlled at 18 cents, averaged 30 cents at the moment of decontrol."

Strikes Cut Supplies
Another executive said that there is hardly any leather available at the present time. "The seven-week strike at the Robson Leather Co. at Oshawa, followed by the strike of the meat packers, has brought about a drastic reduction of supplies," he said. "They too lift the ceilings."

"It's too early to predict shoe prices with any degree of certainty, but there will probably be a 20-25 percent increase on all shoes with the exception of those made with calf leather, on which the increase may be as high as 40 percent. I think that in the future substitutes will be used to a considerably larger degree than they have been in the past. Some of these have proved to be very worth while.

"I think there is going to have to be mass importation of hides from the U.S. if the packers' strike continues. The hides from the Argentine are out of reach at the price which Argentina is asking, 34 cents a pound at present. In order for them to be within reason the price at Argentina would have to be 24 to 26 cents a pound." He

SALVAGE SATURDAY

Newmarket — Newmarket Boy Scouts and Cubs will collect paper salvage on the east side of town on Saturday. Householders are asked to leave their bundles of paper in front of their houses for collection by the Scouts. The proceeds of the sale of salvage are used by Scouts to purchase camping equipment.

MANY EXHIBITS EXPECTED AT JUVENILE SHOW

The juvenile fall show will be held this year at St. Paul's parish hall on Friday, Sept. 26, under the chairmanship of H. A. Jackson. It is sponsored by the Newmarket Horticultural Society. The show, which is open to all pupils of the separate and public schools, promises to be the biggest one in several years.

The amount of each prize has been increased this year and to the school gaining the highest number of points goes a cheque for $15, the donation to the society by the Office Specialty Mfg. Co.

The school children are to place their exhibits at the parish hall between 4 and 5 p.m. to enable the judges to complete their work before 7.30, at which time the show is open to the public. The week naming contest will begin at 7.30 p.m.

The teachers of all the schools, says Howard Hugo, president of the society, "have put a great deal of effort into this coming show. We hope that the parents will show their active interest in the children's exhibits by attending the show Friday evening."

FIREMEN ANSWER TWO CALLS SUNDAY

Newmarket — Firemen were called twice on Sunday but both times they were able to return home in a matter of minutes. The first call came in the middle of the afternoon but the "fire" turned out to be three heavy wires which had become tangled by the high winds, started to burn and then short-circuited. Firemen protected the wires until hydro men arrived.

On the second call the fire was real enough but was extinguished at almost the same time the fire whistle blew. Mr. and Mrs. Harold West, 68 Gorham St., had just returned by car from Barrie and Mr. West was turning off the fog light on the car when a short circuit developed and the wiring started burning. Mr. West and Harold Gordon, his neighbor, were able to smother the flames and Mr. Gordon disconnected the battery. A few minutes later Chief Constable Ronald Watt and Constable Jack Lawrence arrived on the scene to inquire concerning the location of the fire.

STANDARD TIME

Newmarket — Residents of Newmarket will turn their clocks back an hour this weekend when the town goes back to standard time at 2 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 28.

Study 10 Percent Wage Boost For Town Employees

Newmarket — Members of the Newmarket town council met Monday night for one of the shortest regular meetings on record. The council dealt with some routine business matters and was out of the chambers in an hour.

A letter was received from Crown Attorney Arleigh Armstrong in which Mr. Armstrong commended the action of Constable William Hill who apprehended two youths who had broken into the offices of the W. H. Eves Coal and Lumber Co. The clerk was instructed to send a letter of appreciation to Constable Hill.

The suggestion of Councillor R. C. Morrison that a by-law prohibiting parking on the east side be drawn up met with no opposition. Opposite the fire hall, Mayor Vale said he would have the by-law for the next meeting. Firemen have recently met with difficulty in getting the fire truck out of the hall because cars were parked on the east side. "No parking" signs will be placed in the area until the by-law is passed. Reeve Arthur D. Evans presented a report of the water committee.

McComb Pitches Three-Hit Game For Vets' 6-0 Victory

By GEO. HASKETT, JR.
"Joint" McComb, star hurler of "Ceegars" McDonald's Newmarket Vets, chalked up his third successive shut-out to bring the North Yonge softball title back to the cantown for another year. In the deciding game staged at Aurora town park Saturday, Newmarket whitewashed the Langstaff crew 6-0. McComb pitched three hit ball to master the situation from the outset as he struck out ten and faced but 28 batters over the nine-innings stretch.

Without doubt, a secondary feature of the afternoon was the great liking that left-fielder Mickey Smith showed for the pitching of Bill Bowen. Smith spanked the ball for three clean singles, half of his team's total base knocks.

The Vets' first run materialized in the opening frame. Normie Legge stroled to first and sped around to third on a passed ball and a wild throw. Mickey Smith, following Legge at the plate, promptly singled him home. Actually, the way McComb was going, this run was all that was needed to win.

McComb, however, helped his own cause in a large way with a towering home run in the third with two mates aboard after Combs to Freddie Evans to nip Healy at third. Fred Evans then tossed to Freddie Dillman who picked off LaRoque going into second on a close decision.

"Peaches" VanZant, even though handicapped by a badly injured digit, caught and talked a good game to hold up his battery mate, "Joint" McComb. "Ceegars" McDonald had Bill VanZant and "Lefty" Glover in reserve should his pitching falter. Bill VanZant was especially effective in the earlier games of the series. Harry Boag, McDonald's utility fielder, rounded out the club. Manager McDonald was all smiles as his charges came fighting through to take the Joe Spillette Trophy for another year.

Summary: the champions: C. C. VanZant; p. "Joint" McComb; 1b, Moe Walsh; 2b, F. Dillman; ss, D. Eves; 3b, F. Evans; outfield, H. Gibney, N. Legge, M. Smith; util., H. Boag; pitchers, B. VanZant, D. 'Sympathetic Response' Is Noted In Playground Drive

Aurora — Councillor Thomas Swindle said on Tuesday that he is meeting with sympathetic response from the citizens of Aurora in his drive to raise funds to provide playgrounds for the smaller children of Aurora. "However, I am not receiving any support from any other member of the town council," he said.

At present Councillor Swindle and other interested citizens are attempting to clear a lot owned by Eric Quinn, Tyler St., the use of which Mr. Quinn has volunteered for the project. "The committee is meeting tonight to try to clear enough ground for an outdoor skating rink and for a softball diamond for next year."

"I haven't checked with those who are collecting the money but a nice amount has been pledged. In time we hope to be able to establish several of these parks for the pre-school and elementary school children so that they will not be hurt while they are playing on the street. They are not being provided for the use of teenagers, although there may later be some facilities for them. The whole thing is an attempt to get the children off the streets and to bring to the attention of the people the value of playgrounds. It is an experiment to show what can be done. It is just in the development stage now but I think the project will go over."

"The children are all enthusiastic. The men who are doing the work are almost all employees of the Collis Leather Co. Later a local committee of parents will be set up to handle and supervise the project and we expect that some of the older children will help, too. I feel this is the easiest way to demonstrate the value of playground equipment, and it is not adding anything to the tax rate since all funds are privately subscribed."

Councillor Swindle's own children are all grown up.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. Florence Boyd

A well known citizen of Newmarket, Mrs. Florence Boyd, passed away Sept. 2 at the Toronto Western hospital where she had been a patient for some weeks following a long period of ill health which had terminated in a fractured hip.

Born in the township of Whitechurch, she was the eldest daughter of the late William Willis and Annie Bowerman. She was a faithful member of the Friends' church. She married Robert Boyd in 1916 and he predeceased her in 1919.

For years Mrs. Boyd had conducted a dress-making business and her love for the beautiful was especially expressed through her garden.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. David Murray and Mrs. M. W. Powell, a brother, Frank, all of Toronto, and Howard, Vancouver, and Edgar, Bradford.

The funeral was held at the chapel of Roadhouse and Rose on September 4 where a simple service was led by Conran Hay, Toronto, and J. Jay Watson, Newmarket, both of the Society of Friends. The service was well attended and the beautiful floral tributes bore quiet expression of sympathy and respect. The pallbearers were Willis Murray, Earl Willis, John Sheridan, Philip Rushbrook, Edward Willis and Robert Lewis.

More Home Service Seen In Health Unit

Newmarket — Dr. R. G. Struthers of the division of public health administration of the Ontario department of health, outlined the "health unit" to a joint meeting of the Newmarket town council and the Newmarket board of health on Tuesday night.

"The first steps toward health units were taken when the government found that it was unable to do all that it should in the field of health," Dr. Struthers said. "At that time there were 998 medical health officers in Ontario, few of whom had either the time or the specialized training for the job they were trying to do and most of whom needed assistance which the government was unable to provide. Under the circumstances the government began searching for a better health arrangement and 13 years ago a 'pilot' or experimental unit was set up.

"War stimulated the establishment of units. People wanted better health service and the government suggested the health unit as the solution," he continued. "A population of at least 25,000 is necessary for the support of a unit. In the last three and a half years, 19 new units have developed. Some small areas, with populations less than 25,000 pay as much as $1.44 per capita, but they prefer to pay that much in order to have the services of their own unit."

As an example of a unit which preferred to become larger, Dr. Struthers cited East York. "East York was a unit connected with the university as a demonstration unit, but Leaside felt that it was better to have the unit enlarged. That was done and the unit now has a population of over 60,000." Dr. Struthers said the medical health officers under such a scheme gave their full time and were not allowed to have a private practice.

Board Members
"The executive board of a proposed unit for North York and including 14 municipalities, would consist of one member appointed by the provincial department of health and four members appointed by the 14 municipal councils. The provincial appointee is always a medically qualified person who has taken special courses. The 14 municipalities are divided into four groups and each of the four appoints one of the other representatives. If one municipality is not represented on the board the first year, it might be represented the second year. The membership of the board can change every year. People are public-spirited now. When a man accepts a position on the board, he does not do so as a representative of his own municipality but as a member of a group of municipalities."

Dr. Struthers said the unit operates much the same as the present set-up, but that it covers a wider area. "It is conceivable that the headquarters for the area might be in Newmarket," he said. "There would be continuous nursing service, the only difference being that it might not always be done by the same nurse. There would be eight or nine nurses to provide services for the 14 municipalities and there might possibly be two medical health officers who would have the power to ask the assistance of local physicians in doing part of the work. There are approximately 38,000 people in the proposed area of North York and the estimated budget for it is $18,000 or $19,000, about $1.20 per capita. Of that amount the provincial government will pay 50 percent. The other 50 percent will mean about a mill on the tax rate of each of the 14 municipalities."

Eight Or Nine Nurses
"The fact that there will be eight or nine nurses for the unit has advantages. If the nurse serving your particular municipality proves unsuitable for any reason, then you can get one of the seven or eight others without much difficulty. If Miss Clara Kitterer, whom I understand you have hired as public health nurse, desires to become a part of the unit, I see no reason why she should not do so and if Newmarket desires to retain her personal services, that could probably also be arranged. At any rate, with a population of 4,500, it is almost certain that Newmarket will have the services of one of the nurses all of the time."

"The records which are at present being kept by the public health nurse here will continue to be kept and will be where the nurse who is doing the work for this area is located. The school nurse will be absorbed into the program and school nursing services would be carried on but with less time devoted to them. However, more time will probably be spent in the home with pre-school children doing immunization work so that in the long run, less work will be necessary at the schools," Dr.

Take Over Office
"The local health office will be taken over and the equipment will be either purchased, rented or some arrangement made for it." Dr. Struthers said it was not probable that Newmarket would be allowed to employ a school nurse, since such a procedure would mean a duplication of services and a splitting of authority. He said, however, that under the scheme Newmarket should have as good or better nursing services than at present because, in addition to the full time nurse, the experience of eight other nurses and of the director, all of whom would meet "probably every week to discuss things, to hear lectures and to gain an esprit de corps" would be available. He said other municipalities involved in the scheme had undoubtedly more to gain from it than Newmarket, but "I don't think you are going to lose anything."

"A town on its own can and does get service from the provincial department but a unit would be able to get even quicker and better service. In addition, regional services are set up for the advancement of mental health. The sanitary inspectors can take action without referring to anyone else or to any by-laws for authority and there are two, or even three full-time sanitary inspectors in a unit."

Asks Assurances
Dr. L. W. Dales, medical officer of health for Newmarket, expressed the opinion that Newmarket should be given some assurance of local representation on the board. Dr. J. H. Wesley said that in his opinion the loss of some of the school services at present provided by the public health nurse is an even more important point to consider. Dr. Dales said he could not conceive that Newmarket would derive as much benefit from a unit as it is getting under its present system. "The eight nurses will be unable to travel some of the roads between the 14 municipalities during the winter and that means that services will have to be lessened to a degree," he said. Dr. Struthers said that if enough work was done during the other seasons, the services during the winter months could be lessened with little damage resulting. He said the department was recommending less school services even where a municipality was not part of a unit. He said municipalities could work through the board of health in efforts to obtain such things as sewage disposal plants. "It will be the board of health for each of the 14 municipalities as well as for the unit," he said.

"I think the health unit is a wonderful advance and even if we did get less service in Newmarket under the unit, other municipalities would get more service," Dr. Wesley said. "I think the council should go into it and give it whole-hearted support."

PURCHASE OF PROPERTY RAISES QUESTIONS

Last week, the Newmarket town council took the first step to acquire the property west of the post office between Park Ave. and Botsford St. There can be little doubt that the town should have the property; its central location and the urgent need for municipal control over its use make municipal ownership a necessity. Yet the history of the town's interest in the site, and the vote that was taken last April raise certain questions about its use.

On April 7, 1947, the citizens of Newmarket voted on the question: "Are you in favor of the acquisition of property and the construction thereon of a municipal auditorium as a war memorial and for the issue of debentures for the payment of the costs to the town thereof?" A small majority approved the proposal with only a third of the voters marking their ballot.

One question to be answered is whether or not the purchase of the property carries with it the condition that it can only be used as a site for a memorial auditorium. By the wording of the question put to the public, it would appear that public approval was given to the purchase of the property only if used as a site for a memorial auditorium.

It would be most unfortunate if that condition were attached to the purchase of the property. For one thing, there are conflicting opinions, evident at the time of the vote, over just what constitutes an auditorium. More important are the possible alternate uses the property could be put to. One member suggests its interim use as a parking lot. It is very possible that its permanent use as such will be necessary. The need for a second main street with its additional business sites and its traffic facilities must not be forgotten either.

A second question is raised by the manner in which this year's council is apparently prepared to pass the property on to its successors. This year's council is committing the town to a heavy payment for the property but beyond that, has nothing further to offer except the possible condition that a memorial auditorium must be built upon it.

Here is found a perfect example of why Newmarket should have a planning commission as recommended by the property committee at the first of the year. This year, the council commits succeeding councils to a heavy debt, ties them down with a questionable condition regarding the use of the property, and leaves its successors without any consistent record of the history of the purchase, the reasons for it, the conditions attached to it, and the accomplishments sought from it.

To put it bluntly, this year's council has all the appearance of passing on a doubtful issue to its successor to worry about. If, however, there had been a planning commission with its members having staggered terms to ensure some continuity of thought and purpose, this condition would not have arisen. Indeed, the whole ill-planned project would never have ended in that farcical climax of the April 7 vote if it had been properly planned.

HOW DO YOU SPEAK 'BABEL'?

"Wanted — Skilled interpreter of child's talk. Apply editor." No, we haven't placed this classified advertisement yet, but unless our children stop confusing their vowels with consonants, it will appear shortly or else we will lose all touch with them.

One source of the confusion seems to be in the need our son felt for two vocabularies, one for his baby sister who hasn't yet begun to talk and one for his parents. The latter was fairly intelligible, enough to let us know when he was hungry, when he wanted to ride in the car, and so on. His conversation with his sister was something else, a series of grunts, groans, whoops, shrieks, gurgles, in fact all the varieties of human sound of which the tongue is capable. But the strain of maintaining two vocabularies was too much and now he uses a combination of the two with the result that neither his parents nor his sister can understand him.

For the rest, we fear Geoff is a victim of that modern trend, which insists on condensing the written and spoken word, even at the risk of losing the meaning. We live inconveniently close to the railway tracks and Geoff has been fascinated by trains ever since he first saw one. At first, he called them "Choo-choo trains," and then "choo-trains," and finally just plain "choo." Since he uses the same word for tomato and orange juice, we can seldom make out whether he wants a drink or to see the trains.

Another condensation of the same order also has to do with trains. We explained to him that on Sunday the trains stayed home. He translated it as "Bye-bye choo-choo go home." This traveled through successive reductions until the final "choo-chome." We are able to cite these instances because they occurred over a period of several weeks. We are still at loss, however, as to the derivation of several words he now uses. We are tracking them down, one by one, but he coins fresh words faster than we can learn them and we are afraid it's a losing battle.

We've shown this piece to Geoff and he has authorized the following comment (reproduced as near as possible): "Able by car dadada eh who dat dada." Now, wonder what that meant?

FEDERAL SUBSIDIES ONLY ANSWER

According to a headline in a Toronto paper, labor is going "to fight" rising prices by demanding higher rates of pay. It is a curious line of thought. A major contribution to rising prices has been increased wages. "To fight" rising prices by demanding more wages seems very much like fighting a fire with gasoline.

In recent months, there have been price increases in two necessities, bread and milk. In both instances, the increases followed the removal of government subsidies. With government control over prices relinquished, it is possible that further increases in these two necessities will likely follow. There is no suggestion that the inflation spiral has reached its peak. Indeed, labor's fight talk indicates new heights, and as prices in other commodities climb, it is reasonable to expect bread and milk prices to rise with them.

The fact is that the removal of government subsidies on these essentials was a mistake. It is entirely out of sympathy with the government's wartime action in keeping prices down. The real pressure against price ceilings was not exerted until after the war and federal action in ending subsidies now renders useless all its wartime ceilings accomplished in preserving economic stability.

Instead of retaining ceilings, made possible by government subsidy, the government now proposes an alternative of "scaring" business into holding prices down. It proposes to publicize what it considers the proper price should be where it believes a price increase is unjustified. It proposes to exercise the powers of the Combines Investigation Commission. In a word, the federal alternative to price ceilings is to root out profiteers.

While applicable, perhaps, to some businesses, that program is completely inadequate to check price increases which result from rising costs, mainly labor costs, in the production of most necessities. Imagine the government investigating a farmer as a profiteer because he is charging more for his wheat, when the fact is that his labor and cost of machinery have all increased.

The only possible way of holding prices for necessities to within the $36 per capita weekly wage among laborers is by subsidy. By abandoning subsidies, the government is encouraging further increases in wages with resulting higher costs and consequent higher selling prices—which in their turn will require higher wages—and the cycle is repeated. To abandon subsidies is to encourage inflation.

ANDREI VISHINSKY'S ATTACK ON U.S.A.

Mr. Andrei Vishinsky, Russian delegate to the United Nations, gave a convincing demonstration of his reliance on tried political tricks, all derived from the same unfortunate source, in his 92-minute tirade against the United States before the general assembly last week. The exaggerated falsehood, the persecuted nation complex—these two and others were employed at one time by one, Adolph Hitler. They were the more obvious in Mr. Vishinsky's remarks.

The gist of Mr. Vishinsky's condemnation of the United States was that the United States was following a "crazy" pattern to world domination; and that, with the tacit consent of the government, "reactionary circles" were creating a war psychosis against Russia among the American people. There was much more, references to the United States' stand on atomic energy, the Marshall Plan, the Truman Doctrine, but the core of it was that the United States was attempting to dominate the world and the destiny of the Soviet Union was to stop it.

Mr. Vishinsky knows that his accusations, baseless as they are, stand little likelihood of formal refutation before the United Nations. For the United States to do so would be to embroil the United Nations assembly in unending argument, and to perhaps bring an end to the organization. He has calculated his risks like a gambler. He is betting for the publicity his accusations will receive against the chance of formal rebuttal. That publicity is valuable because, unfortunately, there are thousands in the United States, and Canada, too, who will accept his statements as the truth.

Discounting the communists and fellow travelers, for whom every word from the Kremlin is engraved on golden tablets, there remain the victims of Mr. Vishinsky's clever use of the two aforementioned tricks, the exaggerated lie and the persecuted nation complex. They will believe his charges of attempted domination because, as they will reason, they are so inconceivable he wouldn't make them unless they were true. They will accept the charge of persecution because of the sentimental pap they have been fed for the last ten years by the Henry Wallace's and other pseudo-liberals.

We in Canada and the United States accepted the "One World" of the late Wendell Wilkie with all the fervor of converts embracing a new religion. United with Russia, we believed we waged a holy war against fascism. We are just beginning to learn that while we all share a common membership in the human species, there is little in common in the purpose and principles that motivate us.

It is in the very nature of communism that it must expand. Yet, if the democracies are to continue to exist, they must oppose that expansion. They can, by propagating a belief in democracy and fulfilling its promises, just as Russia sows the seed of communism wherever it can. We have been contented in our ivory tower overlong. If our way of life is to persist, it must be the way of life in all the world, not just in our own community.

There is the real conflict. Democracy or communism must prevail alone to exist. Either we accept our way of life, with its faults and our endeavor to correct them, or accept communism as the alternative. What transpires in Europe in the next two decades will determine how well we made our choice.

According to our modern weather prophets, the windstorm of Sunday was the tail-end of the hurricane that ravaged the south coast of the United States some days earlier.

The fire on Tuesday night, had it been earlier, would have made three successive interruptions by fire calls of the Newmarket town council meetings.

Around Town

About the men and women you meet around town almost everyday.

When Carl Stouffer applied for enlistment in the armed services during the first world war, the recruiting officer looked up quickly when he heard the name. "German origin?" he asked. But he relaxed again and wrote "Canadian" when Carl told him that his great grandfather had been Stouffville's first settler, that Stouffville had been named after him, and that Carl's great grandfather, grandfather, and father had all been born there.

Carl's father, Andrew Stouffer, was 83 on Sept. 14, and was born in that part of Stouffville which was in the original 600-acre grant to Abraham Stouffer. He went to public school in Ringwood, about two miles from Stouffville, and then worked on his father's farm there until he was 25. His family were all musical, and he used to go out in the evening and teach singing and the violin.

After his marriage he began teaching music on a "full time" basis, but recalls that "I made more money trading horses than teaching music for some years." He was quite successful as a trainer of balky or "just plain ornery" horses, and horses continued to be his mode of transportation until he bought his first car in 1915. In 1900 he married Lillian O'Brien, organist for the church choir which he directed. They had three children.

Andrew and his wife moved to Newmarket in 1892, where he continued to teach music, and for 12 years he was choir leader at the then Methodist church. His wife died in 1895, and at about the same time he began to tune pianos as well as teaching. He has been tuning pianos and dealing in them ever since, and only gave up teaching two years ago.

In 1900 Andrew married Florence Parsons, Port Perry, who had been his first wife's cousin, and the band in which Andy played clarinet from 1900 until 1910 came and charivariated them. Andrew has since taught everything from the cello to banjo, but the piano and the violin continue to be his favorite instruments.

Fond of Baseball
"In my younger days I played baseball and shinny, and one year I played football. I can still pitch a good horseshoe." He says he enjoys gardening, and had quite a crop of tomatoes, corn and cucumbers this year.

Andrew belonged to the Ancient Order of Workers for some years, but after it amalgamated with the Independent Order of

ANDREW STOUFFER
Foresters, his interest lagged and he obtained a cash surrender value on fees and quit. He has held various church offices, chief of which were a membership on the music committee, and the office of treasurer of the session fund.

Two sons, Arthur and Carl, now reside in Saskatchewan and are proud fathers; a daughter in California is a grandmother in her own right, with two daughters and a granddaughter; and a third son has taken over the printing business in Port Perry which was formerly operated by Mrs. Stouffer's father. The whole family is musically minded. Mrs. Stouffer used to play the violin and piano, and now son Victor is also quite a violinist.

Andrew says his family originated many years ago in Switzerland. His great grandfather was born in Pennsylvania and obtained the 600-acre grant, 400 acres of which were in Whitchurch township and 200 in Markham, in the year 1804. "He brought quite a number of people with him when he came to Stouffville from Pennsylvania, and the people had to bring their livestock with them, Andrew says. "When they came, they had to build bridges and ford rivers. When they got here they built a grist mill and a sawmill, and they dammed the creek to make a pond so that they would have water power. My grandfather was the first of my great grandparents' children to be born in Canada."

Andrew doesn't believe in retiring. "When people retire, they die. I'm not going to retire until I have to," he says.

THE COMMON ROUND

By Isabel Inglis Colville

THINGS HAPPEN AROUND HOME

Only once in a lifetime can you be three years old. Consequently, your birthday is an important and to be celebrated occasion, for you are emerging from babyhood into little girlhood, hence your friends should share your joy with you.

Alas for days gone by. By no stretch of the imagination could you picture me as three years old. Nevertheless, to my great delight, Susan invited me to her party, for it was Susan Starr who had reached this delightful milestone.

Is there anything prettier—and funnier—than this kind of a party? Pretty because all the little ones in their dainty gowns are lovely and funny because playing together is something of a problem.

Ring-around-a-rosy was engaged in almost violently by a few hardy spirits, but others preferred wheelbarrows and doll carriages. One thing they all liked was to be settled like sardines in two little wagons and taken for rides round the lawn. They enjoyed being read to, though they showed a tendency to lie on top of the book and elaborate on its contents.

One mother told me that ever since the party she has to play ring-around-a-rosy several times a day, although her daughter wasn't as enthusiastic about it at the party as one or two others.

The supper was funny, too—now don't mistake me, the food was simply delicious and I, for one, ate far too much—but the celebrants were much too excited to eat and so the mothers and the one or two extra guests more than made up for their lack of appetite. And then, Shirley and Clark Smith, Nancy and Helen Ridley, Marjorie Preston, Lyn Penrose and Kenny Harper were taken home by their mammas and Susan and Marcen Starr retired to rest, somewhat overcome with so much excitement.

Quintuplets!
Yes, we have quintuplets in our home and yet, no one has offered us the care of specialists for them, no nursery is planned for them, no milk flow from afar for them. Mrs. McClure did send extra milk for their mother which she appreciated. Their nursery is the bare floor in a corner of a seldom-used bedroom. Their mother rejected the offer of a soft quilt to lay them on. At first she shoved it aside; then with great dignity mixed with a spice of indignation, she moved them to their present abode. To me, it is a silly choice, for often I hear squeaks and shrieks and going to the rescue find one of the five away beneath a stand, too low for the mother to get under, and I am lucky if I can reach a hind leg or tail and retrieve the wanderer.

The quints don't resemble one another in the least and are just common little kittens, but when you see them piled up in a little heap they're rather sweet and their mother thinks they are the last word in kittens. She guides us to them as if it was a great privilege to gaze at them, while she gives them a lick here and there to show they're being taken care of.

A Delightful Evening
There are very few people, I fancy, who do not love birds and flowers. Such being the case, we of the Bogartown Women's Institute had a wonderful opportunity for gratifying our taste on Tuesday evening of last week when Mrs. Carol Proctor, Kettleby, gave us an illustrated talk on our Canadian wildflowers and bird life.

Mrs. Proctor photographs her own subjects and then colors them exquisitely. She told me that sometimes she also makes a sketch and writes in the color. The business part of the meeting over, it was our regular one, Mrs. Frank Williams spoke of her pleasure in having Mrs. Proctor with us and then the meeting was handed over to Miss Lenore Starr, convener of the committee in charge. She called on your scribe who sang Canada Ever, Mrs. Geo. Wood kindly acting as accompanist. Speaking of Mrs. Wood, I wish to mention that she thanked the Bogartown members for remembering with cards her mother's 90th birthday and of her mother's pleasure in receiving them. Then Miss Starr introduced Mrs. Proctor and everyone settled down to an hour or more of thorough enjoyment and added to the enjoyment—instruction for Mrs. Proctor knows and loves her subject.

She divided her talk into parts like the sections of a department store and showed us how wonderful nature takes care of her own. She showed us the long woolen underwear on a young owl, even down to its very toes, and the dainty, tiny panicles on the wild cucumber vines—they were fit for fairies in their lacy loveliness. She showed us the grocery department with the wild fruits, berries and roots which she had been told the Indians ate. If so, said she, she understood why Indians had poker faces, for if they had ever let their children know how terrible some of the things tasted, they would never have eaten them.

Then came the music department and a view of the tenor and bass section of the chorus. The tenors were garbed more like grand opera stars in black, white and chestnut costumes, such as bob-o-links, while the bass section were in vivid green and sat on a lily pad platform—maybe he stood, I wouldn't know—and no doubt thundered in bass profundo equal to a Paul Robeson or Thomas L. Thomas.

The housing department was represented by a mouse's nest in the upper part of an old trunk—a wonderful comical structure of Koppac which had been brought from an old mattress quite a distance away; also a tree swallow's house into which he was trying to introduce lumber much larger than himself.

The art department was very beautiful, for there, in all their beauty of form and coloring, shone our wild flowers. Mrs. Proctor is a tree artist along with her other talents and had managed to find the habitat which showed them in their really superlative loveliness—a mass of white trilliums against the rocks, a clump of tansy against an old board fence, the briar rose, Dutchman's breeches, lady's slipper, wild iris, Indian pipe, marsh marigolds and countless others. She closed with a snow scene which was recognized by some of the men in the room.

It was an evening of pure delight and we all hope we shall have again the opportunity to hear Mrs. Proctor and see the fruits of her amazing work.

Big Mouth
A youth with a very large mouth walked into a music shop to buy a mouthorgan. He was shown every make of mouthorgan in the shop, but still was not satisfied.

"Look here," said the assistant. "We shall have to measure you for one. Just try your mouth along this piano."

Laugh and be Healthy

Laugh to be healthy, say those versed in medical science. There's a warming, stimulating, uplifting quality about cheerfulness, just as there is a sense of coldness and depression in gloom, says the Brandon Sun. There's nothing as infectious as laughter, and it's one type of contagion which the doctors welcome. The happy soul in office, in classroom or in the home, is the fountain-head of a tonic better than any which comes in bottles.

Canadian Delegates Given Warm Reception By Dutch

Following is another in the series of letters written by Miss Anna P. Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, Yonge St. Miss Lewis, who is director of the Women's Institute branch and Home Economics service, Ontario Department of Agriculture, was attending the first post-war convention of the Associated Countrywomen of the World. She writes of the opening ceremonies.

— The Editor.

Amsterdam, Sept. 8, 1947: The great conference is under way, and what a thrill it has been today to see the women of so many nationalities come up to register and then take part in the deliberations. Princess Juliana, honorary president of the Congress, was to have opened the conference, but was indisposed and so her lady-in-waiting was present and the chairman of the Dutch Association of Countrywomen read a message from the Princess. In her message, Princess Juliana by women in many countries to attend the meeting. "This time," she said, "many have travelled not hours, but days to be present at the conference. It is our hope that the meeting will bring mutual and worthwhile discussions."

Other speakers were the Dutch minister of agriculture and Mrs. Alfred Watt of Canada who, after eight years stewardship as president of the A.C.W.W., is finishing her third and final term of office.

This conference, held during the week of Sept. 8, is the fifth triennial international conference of the Associated Countrywomen of the World, an international body whose membership comprises 5,000,000 women. Delegates are present from most of the 26 countries whose rural women's organizations make up the A.C.W.W.

From Canada, eight of the nine provinces are represented by 18 delegates, with Mrs. Cameron E. Dow, past president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, heading the delegation. Ontario is represented by Mrs. Hugh Summers of Fonthill, provincial president, F.W.I.O.; Miss Anna Lewis, Director of the Women's Institute Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture; Mrs. William McCleure, Brampton, board director for Peel and York; Miss Edith M. Collins, home economist, Women's Institute Branch; Mrs. Angus Jackson, president, Stoney Creek Women's Institute; and Miss Marjorie Lee, daughter of Erland Lee who was co-organizer of the first Women's Institute in the world at Stoney Creek. In the greetings which were brought from each country, Canada received tremendous applause. Everywhere the Dutch people speak in superlative terms regarding the assistance Canada has given them. We are looked upon with gratitude, admiration and respect. As soon as people learn we are from Canada they cannot seem to do enough for us.

I had quite a funny experience in Alkmaar while touring Holland, with an interpreter, Olie Schoemaker. Some little girls were watching us take pictures, and one said to the others, "I think she is English." Olie said, "No, she is Canadian." The girls laughed and giggled, because to them there could not be a "girl Canadian." There were only "boy Canadians." It was cute to watch them have their little discussion.

Among other organizations attending the conference are the U.N.O. and the F.A.O. Unesco was unable to send a representative because its own meetings are being held at the same time, but has requested that it be kept informed of the proceedings.

The Associated Countrywomen of the World, which has recently been appointed to consultative status in the U.N.O., will consider several important resolutions during the conference. Among them is one relating to the world food situation. Recognizing that the question of world nutrition is of first importance, members are asked, not only to study the recommendations of the Food and Agriculture Organization, but to give practical help by raising the standards of food production and nutrition in their own countries. The South Australian Country Women's Association will put forward a resolution regarding the part country women can play in preserving peace among the nations.

The four international conferences preceding this one were held in Vienna in 1930, Stockholm in 1933, Washington, D.C., in 1938 and London in 1939. There has of necessity been a lapse of eight years since the last international conference, but in spite of the upheavals of the war years and the present travel difficulties, country women's organizations from 19 countries have sent delegates to Amsterdam.

The three main aims of the A.C.W.W. are: to promote and maintain relations between the rural women's associations of all nations and to give any possible help in their development; to further the common interest of these organizations while avoiding political and sectarian questions of a controversial nature; to encourage the formation of rural women's organizations where this need has not been met.

We had a wonderful trip through part of Holland Saturday and Sunday. I would like to know about a Folk School which I visited in North Holland. It was a most worthwhile visit, and I took several pictures which I shall be able to show of a Junior Farmer meeting. I have names of several pen pals who would like to write to our Junior Farmers. It was a weekend Folk School of a group of Junior Farmers from North Holland, and there could not have been a better gathering for me to attend.

We made a tour all around North Holland, saw where the Germans had destroyed the land, and also the admirable comeback of the Dutch people. We visited farm after farm talking with the people themselves, through our interpreter, a young woman in her early thirties. I feel now as though I had known her all my life, and with her along it was not difficult to interpret the language. Miss Collins, Miss Lee and I did this trip, and we covered in one day what the delegates will do in three days after the conference. I feel we got even more out of it, as we had that intimate contact with the farm families.

Incidentally, I have to do a broadcast next Tuesday, over the B.C.C. for C.B.C. transmission. "Anna P. Lewis."

The North York GARDENER

By JOHNN DALY
Vice President, Newmarket Horticultural Society

Last week we spoke at length on tulips. Another and equally important member of the spring garden is the narcissus. This name covers quite a variety of types of flowers. The best known is the daffodil. They have the long trumpet in the centre of the perianth. All species are distinguished by the length of the trumpet or cup in relation to the perianth.

Hence the barli have short cups, less than one-third the length of the perianth segment or petal. Incomparables have cups longer than one-third the segment length. Seeds have longer cups than the incomps but not so long as the daffodil and all have white perianths with the cups white, cream or primrose. Poeticus have a very small flattened eye or crown and are always intensely fragrant. Poetaz is a "bunch-flowered" type. The jonquills are a "small-flowered" type, very fragrant and most of them have several flowers to the stem. Then there are a number of doubles.

There has been a lot of improvement noted in the past few years in the size of bloom and length of stem. Can you picture a daffodil six inches across—you can do more than that—you can grow it. A few years ago the name "daffodil" brought to mind a yellow flower but you can find pure whites now on the market, and now they have a pink but it is still three times the price of the ordinary varieties.

The other narcissus types are just as desirable as the daffodil. Probably many people would prefer them. In fact I'm quite sure that each type would get its share of votes in a popularity contest.

Plant them four inches deep in good, well drained soil, eight inches apart and leave them to increase and multiply for years.

Other bulbs for the spring garden are crocus, flowering in early April. There are many colors available and they can be left undisturbed to improve with each passing year. Plant them two inches deep, four inches apart.

Hyalenins are best known as a pot plant but they make a beautiful showing in the spring garden.

Get the second-size bulbs for outside, plant them five inches deep and six inches apart.

The snowdrop, or to give it its proper name, galanthus, is a very welcome visitor in the early spring, its white flowers appearing as the snow leaves. Plant them two inches deep and four inches apart.

There are many other bulbs, but I think probably you will have enough to do in the next few weeks to satisfy you for the season.

Many species of lizards are able to detach their tails when pursued, in order to distract the foe.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT SENTENCE YOUTHS TO FOUR MONTHS

Newmarket—Two youths, ages 19 and 17, pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking into the offices of W. H. Eves and Co. in the early morning of Monday, Sept. 4, in magistrate's court here on Friday. Both were sentenced to four months imprisonment. One of the youths is from Newmarket, the other from Weston.

Constable Wm. Hill, Jr., of Newmarket saw the two in the Eves office and captured one. Constable James Leeder arrested the other the following day. Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake commended the police for handling the case efficiently.

Counsel for one of the accused asked leniency for both boys, and Mayor Jos. Vale spoke on behalf of the accused from Newmarket. Magistrate Hollinrake said that he was anxious to give them a chance but he considered it a serious offence. "This lawlessness on the part of youngsters increases," he added. He said that leniency would leave it wide open for other boys to say that these offences are treated lightly.

He continued: "If we traced back many of these crimes, we would usually find a lack of discipline somewhere." Magistrate Hollinrake said that he did not feel that a suspended sentence would be in the interest of the public and that he would not be doing his duty, much as he personally would like to be lenient.

Crown Counsel Arleigh Armstrong said that the court was trying to protect the public and the boys themselves. He said that he could not possibly agree to a suspended sentence.

Fleeds Guilty

R. B. Hughes, Toronto, pleaded guilty to charges of wilful damage of a fence belonging to Herbert White on the continuation of Wellington St., Aurora, between concessions 4 and 5. Det. Allan Wallace of York County police laid the charges. Hughes had driven a truck through the fence and had used the rails from about 30 feet of fence to get it out of the ditch. Sentence was suspended and he was charged with witness fees and court costs.

T. Webdale of Sterling Rd., Toronto, was fined $10 and costs for violating the Game and Fisheries act in King and York townships and an additional $10 for not having a gun license. J. McGee, Toronto, was also fined $10 and costs for no gun license. Game Warden George Armitage laid both charges.

Charges of careless driving against John W. Buttery, Toronto, were dismissed. On August 16 Buttery was driving in a new car about a mile south of Mount Albert at the time of the accident. Constable Jos. Jardine of Queensville quoted Buttery as saying that he was travelling about 45 miles an hour when he lost control of the car and it "seemed to float as if in water." The car rolled over several times. Jardine later found that the kingpin in a front wheel was broken in two places. Marion Chard, 19, of 205 Lawrence Ave. E., Toronto, who was a passenger in the car, died of injuries received in the accident. Another passenger, Clifford Stiles, 23, 191 Ennerdale Ave., Toronto, was also injured.

Norman Bryson, Woodbridge, was remanded for two weeks on a charge of careless driving in Aurora laid by Constable Wm. Langman.

Lightning

Almost everyone has heard the admonition, "Don't stand under a tree during a thunderstorm." Life insurance statistics recently compiled show how important that advice is. They reveal that about one third of all persons killed by lightning were struck while under a tree. The warning, it would seem, is a good one and one to be rigidly observed.

Now, Just Let Me See — Gain Or Lose An Hour?

By GOLDEN GLOW

This is an age of initials, but nobody has to stop to figure out what D.S.T. stands for. Since the first world war, daylight saving time has been D.S.T. and for champion mix-ups, commend me to those three letters! Even to this day there's scarcely anybody who can tell you right off the bat whether you are an hour ahead or an hour behind, whether you turn your clocks ahead or whether you turn them back! We have to stop and "figure it out" and ten chances to one somebody figures it wrong, and finds themselves an hour too early, or (woe betide them!) and hour too late!

So look out next Saturday night, and see that you turn your clocks back instead of on, or you'll first of all miss that hour of Sunday morning sleep you might have; second, you'll get down to breakfast an hour too soon; third, you'll get to church an hour too early; fourth, you'll miss your usual Sunday radio broadcast; fifth, you'll be an hour too early for Sunday dinner; sixth, you'll have an hour's wait at Lions park for the drumhead service to be held there at 2.30 p.m. I guess by that time, somebody will have set you wise, and you'll have fixed your watch and the family clocks, and won't be late for Sunday tea and evening service.

Wins on Quiz Program

I recall a good many years ago when it was always a good subject for jokers we were listening to a quiz program on the radio, when the name of one of our citizens was called. The question was: "Do you set your clock back or ahead when you go on daylight saving time?" One Newmarketer had his wits about him, and if I recall correctly, it netted him $15 for the correct answer.

We will be surprised when church time comes next Sunday evening and we find it nearly dark when seven o'clock, church time, arrives. We will re-gain the hour we "lost" last May—oh what a lot of things we plan to do with that lost hour, and I wouldn't mind betting we forget all about it. We will turn our watches and clocks back on Saturday night, when we go to bed, and next morning we'll have forgotten all about it, and wonder why we awakened so early. We'll probably not remember it all day till evening comes and we wonder why it is getting dark so early. Then maybe we'll remember!

You'll hear folks argue that, now we are on daylight saving time, why don't we stay on it altogether? Well, not everybody goes on fast time, as we call it. The C.P.R. and C.N.R. trains run on standard time. Detroit never has changed to D.S.T. The farmers do not approve of it—you see you can't set the alarm clock an hour ahead for cattle and poultry, etc. They always run on "sun" time. What of the Puss?

I bet my silver-grey puss will be late for breakfast next Sunday, for I can't whisper in his ear and tell him to wake up an hour earlier. Well, will you look at that? Why no—he'll probably get here an hour earlier than breakfast. Just see how easy it is to get mixed up.

I'd better read over what I've written for I'm hopelessly mixed up. Do we lose an hour or do we gain one? Let me think it over. Oh yes—sure. We gain the hour next Sunday that we lost last May. While I have it straight in my mind is the time to end this article, before I get all mixed up again. Just wait till I look at the calendar. I see it is full moon September 30, so it won't be so very dark in the evening till we get used to the change in time. All the same I think I am glad we don't have double daylight saving. We'd never get ourselves untangled.

To The Citizens Of Newmarket:

The committee for the collection of garbage, and myself, wish to thank the citizens of Newmarket who have co-operated with us in making what we hope is a success of municipal garbage collection.

It has been our desire to create in the town of Newmarket a complete and sanitary collection and disposal of garbage which would meet and has met with the approval of the Department of Health of Ontario.

During the past two and one-half months since the inauguration of this project, we have run into numerous difficulties. The most frequent complaints which are received deal with the collector not picking up certain types of refuse such as old stovepipes, eavestroughing, fence wire, large piles of brush and garden refuse, discarded building materials and so on. In some cases these articles have been placed for pick-up in such quantities that nearly a whole load is taken up with one collection or is in such a loose, haphazard pile that an unnecessarily long time is required to load it. Under these circumstances it is evident that it is impossible to make these pick-ups. However, we feel that with a little co-operation these articles can be picked up. To enable us to do this, we ask the citizens who have this type of refuse to place it at the curb, broken down and securely tied in bundles, or placed in containers which can be lifted easily by one man to truck level. If the householder would spread these bundles over several collections so as not to create so large an overload that our collector's schedule would be interrupted, we feel that we can look after almost all refuse coming from domestic establishments.

There are cases where this cannot be applied. For example, in the remodelling or construction of a building, we could not be expected to pick up the debris resulting from this work.

In previous notices we emphasized the fact that all household garbage should be as dry as possible and securely wrapped. This request has been observed by the majority of householders, however, there are some who, by putting very wet garbage unwrapped into their cans, cause conditions which are far from sanitary and healthful. Therefore we must make the regulation that all wet garbage must be properly wrapped or it will not be picked up by the collector.

Attention to items such as those mentioned above can make municipal collection a success or failure depending on the manner in which the patron desires to act.

Again we thank you for your co-operation and we feel sure that municipal collection will prove a success due to this and future aid. Suggestions of ways and means to improve the service to you will always be respectfully accepted and where possible, will be acted upon.

COUPLE LIVE IN NEWMARKET

Autumn flowers and candlelight formed the setting for the marriage on September 10 of Helen Frances Haines, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cull, and Robert George Birrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. M. Birrell. Rev. Henry Colton officiated at the service in Trinity United church. Herman G. Fowler, Mus. Bac., R.M.T., was organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, and wore a gown of ivory slipper satin with a sweetheart neckline, full skirt, long train, and a fingertip embroidered veil with a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of American Beauty roses.

Her bridesmaid, Helen Skinner, and her sister, Orma Haines, who was matron of honor, wore similar gowns of pink satin brocade and carried pink roses and white gladioli. The flower girl, Margaret Rose Barr, niece of the bride, wore pale green organdy and carried tulip and rosebuds.

William Britt, cousin of the groom, acted as groomsmen, while A. H. Regnier, Howard Haines, Robert McElroy and Donald Smith were ushers. The reception was held at the Canadian Legion Hall, where the groom's mother received in floor-length virgin blue taffeta, and the bride's aunt received in floor length pearl grey crepe.

For travelling, the bride wore a gray suit, hat and gloves, dahlia colored shoes, and carried a dahlia colored bag. The honeymoon was spent in the eastern states. Guests at the wedding were from Windsor, London, Toronto, Elfrick and Barrie. The couple has taken up residence in Newmarket.

TEEN-AGERS 'Ungrateful', Mrs. Kate Aikens Declares

Newmarket — The town hall was filled on Tuesday evening to hear Kate Aikens give another of her friendly, humorous and informative talks. The evening, which was sponsored by the Women's Institute, included the showing of several films, and a sing-song led by W. M. Cockburn with Miss Bertha Neilly at the piano.

Mrs. Aikens, speaking on her associations with the Canadian National Exhibition, was introduced by the president, Mrs. Roy MacDonald, who acted as chairman for the evening.

"One thing proven by this recent Exhibition," said Mrs. Aikens, "is the tremendous interest of men as well as women in our newly forming fashion industry. Eighteen fashion shows a day were presented and every showing was crowded by people of all ages. For the first time we were able to present an entirely Canadian show and to realize that because our styles are not so extreme as those of Paris and our fabrics are more versatile and practical than many imported ones that we have here an industry with a brilliant future for Canada and Canadians."

Through her work in Teen-Town, Mrs. Aikens had the opportunity of studying the teenagers of today and her greatest impression of them was, she said, "They are spoiled! As a group they expect everything for nothing—are indifferent and ungrateful to their parents and to all adults generally and have no sense of value or service to others."

Mrs. Aikens said these were strong words but true.

"Our aim for next year's exhibition," concluded Mrs. Aikens after several very amusing anecdotes, "is to present a true picture of Canada to all who attend and to make the C.N.E. the show window of Canada."

Sharon Club To Show Calves At N.H.S. Friday

Achievement days soon to be held for the York county boys' calf and grain clubs will mark the close of another busy season for these farm boys ranging in age from 12 to 20 years. During the summer, instruction was given in judging the various breeds of dairy cattle, and in classes of seed, feeding, caring for and showing of cattle and cultural practices relating to crops. Keeping records and conducting of meetings was also discussed. The culmination of these activities is the achievement day usually held at the fall fairs where the final marks are obtained for showmanship and quality of exhibit.

The Markham and Woodbridge Calf and Grain club will be holding their achievement days at the local fairs on October 3 and October 13 respectively. Schomberg calf club boys will be showing their calves at the Schomberg fair, October 11. The Sharon calf club, which has generally held its shows at Sharon, is this year holding the achievement day on the Newmarket high school grounds, Friday afternoon, Sept. 26, and are looking forward to a good turnout. Archie McKenzie, assistant representative in York, reports that the boys are busy writing their examinations and holding their final judging competitions these days. He states the boys have given splendid co-operation throughout the year and looks for keen competition at their respective shows.

Insurance companies often come across unique evasions on the forms applicants fill out. Young Hopefuls

By DOROTHY MUIR BOWMAN

At the funeral, Eugene, either out of curiosity or to prove to younger sister he wasn't afraid, looked in the coffin. The shock was a great one and he was frightened. Now he is afraid to go to grandfather's house. This fear of the house should be dispelled by taking Eugene to visit his grandmother as soon as possible and as often as possible. Otherwise, fear of the place will continue to distract him even though he ceases to mention it.

Sister Eunice didn't want to look in the coffin but someone told her she should — just to please grandmother. Afterwards, she had an extensive story to tell about her grandfather, whom she now refers to as "he". "He was just like a ghost, all dressed up. He looked awfully white; but, I guess everybody is white like that in Heaven. Maybe Rex (a pet dog who died over a year ago) won't know him. Anyway, when he wakes up, he will see Rex and tell him we have another dog to play with us now. I hope he likes Heaven and never comes back. He's awfully white and I don't want him to come back. Grandmother will let me play in the barn — who will milk the cows? — if grandmother milks the cows, I'll feed the chickens, etc. etc."

Eunice's younger mind escaped the shock of fear. Instead, she was impressed with her grandfather's changed appearance. He is no longer the grandfather she loved. All the fun and happy times they had had in the past are dimmed by the vividness of the present impressions. At her age, she may never be able to recall those early days on the farm with grandfather. In the future, she will have two mental pictures of grandfather, which seems rather a pity; but, at least, Eunice will never want him back, so "awfully white."

It is doubtful if any good is derived by anyone, except those with morbid curiosities, from viewing a corpse. At least, children should be spared the chance of shock and unfavorable impressions their young minds conjure.

With age, usually comes the acceptance of the facts of life. No matter what the creed — death of the living flesh is an inevitable part of life. We have to have time to accept it as such. Since death, in its final form, cannot be re-experienced, ancient stories regarding it are probably as acceptable and may be more satisfying to some than modern conceptions.

It's perfectly natural and normal to have fear of the unknown; yet, since fear thwarts all learning, young and growing minds should be kept as free from fear as possible if they are to develop to the extent of their capacities.

Hoffman, Tanners Tied In Industrial League Finals

By GEO. HASKETT, JR.
 Canadian Hoffman squared up the Industrial League playoffs with a crushing 16-2 triumph over the Davis Leather nine. The game was played Monday at Pantry Park. It was the second skirmish of the finals, with the third game due for decision tonight.
 Hoffman's jumped into a commanding lead with a great burst of base hits in the first inning to register 11 runs. The tanners had considerable difficulty in putting the Hoffman fire out. However, the tanners, not to be outdone, started a fire of their own but this was at their bench and was not carded on the score-sheet. It was strictly to keep warm as snow commenced to fall during the later stages of the game.
 "Lefty" Glover took over the pitching duties from Bill Bone for the tanners in the second and fared much better than his predecessor, limiting Hoffman to five runs over the rest of the route.

 Bill VanZant was on the firing line for the Hoffman club and for the most part, had the tanners popping up to the infield. VanZant chalked up 13 strikeouts in all.
 One hardy fan, and there weren't many who braved the cold, complete with winter gear, was heard to remark as he left the park "Why don't you guys finish this series on Christmas Day?" Anyhow it was lovely rugby weather.
 Hoffman's: M. Walsh, B. VanZant, H. VanZant, C. Codlin, S. Parks, J. Nullmeyer, C. Rose, Hutchison, G. Blight, V. Langford, J. Duncan.
 Davis Leather: C. Turan, B. Bone, B. Revill, W. Haskett, K. Harman, N. Tansley, K. Thoms, E. Broughton, G. Haskett, D. Glover.
 Umpires: O. Gould, plate; H. Thoms, bases.

NEWMARKET, AURORA CYCLISTS IN TOP TEN
 Two Newmarket cyclists made a fine showing at the recent Canadian annual 100-mile bicycle race at Hamilton. Bob Benville came in fourth and Ned Skead placed seventh in the gruelling grind in which ten riders finished out of a strong field of starters. Bill McClenny, Aurora, finished tenth.
 Earlier in the year, Bob Benville came into the limelight when he placed third in the one-mile Canadian Dirt Track Championships, being a medal winner with competitors from east to west coasts.
 Both Skead and Benville are riding with the Aurora Cycle club with Benville at the moment leading Aurora's ace rider, Cliff

 The 100-mile race at Hamilton was won by 80-year-old Gus Hogen, Hamilton, Canada's ace long distance rider, who finished in five hours, 47 minutes.
 Benville finished in six hours, 23 minutes, and 18-year-old Ned Skead was timed six hours, 67 minutes.

LADIES' BOWLING
 Newmarket—The rink skipped by Mrs. Claridge of Tottenham won the W. P. Mulock trophy at the tournament which was held on Thursday, Sept. 11, at the Newmarket bowling greens.

DOWN THE CENTRE

By AB HULSE

It looks as if there will only be one intermediate hockey team in Newmarket next winter. Already organized for next winter is Hoffman Machinery and through the good offices of the Canadian manager Mr. Khuns, some real dough has been placed at the club's disposal. Father T. J. McCabe will coach the team and Cegars McDonald, who managed the Vets team, and Harvey Gibney of the Vets are with the Hoffman club this winter as well as Johnny Campbell. A strong roster of players is being thumbed over and where replacements are needed they'll be had. Megani, Wolfe and Collings from Bradford are counted upon once again to line up with the near all homebrew club. A get together of the exec committee was held last week and there is a strong group of citizens behind the club. There has been no pronouncement from Vets headquarters yet as to what their intentions are but it looks very much as if the two clubs will get together all the way along the line and provide canaltown with a contending club for intermediate B honors. Sutton Greenhills and Markham Millionaires will both be back but Toronto R.C.A.F. and Todmorden Legion are not likely to start in the O.H.A. and the three rural teams aren't unhappy about that. A fourth club from Stouffville, Aurora or Richmond Hill would round out the group nicely.
 Jimmy Walker says that Newmarket will be back in junior once again. Aurora will be intact but for the loss of Billy Mundell. Bradford will be back, likely without the services of Bill Boychhoff. Markham under Doug James will go again and it only remains to see whether or not it will be Victoria Square or Richmond Hill as a junior entry. Last spring the Square was said to be through and the Hill in, but you can never tell. For so early in the year there seems to be more activity than in any previous year. As early as July Markham Millionaires were looking around for one or two players to bolster their weak spots. This month sees most of the professional teams settling down to serious business.
 Owing to illness, James Stewart, principal of Richmond Hill high school for the past quarter of a century, has resigned and been succeeded by E. O. Robbins of Elora. A former soccer stalwart, "Jimmy" for many years looked after the Hill teams himself and in later years has contented himself with seeing the coaches get full support from faculty and student body. For several years he acted as president of the North York interscholastic sports committee and did a fine job. He will be missed this year by students and fans throughout the circuit. Whitby juvenile baseball team, eliminated by Aurora, was financed this year in a unique manner. Close to 20 merchants sponsored a player each to the tune of $25 apiece. Leonard Simmons and George Haskett perked their ears up at this news and doubtless are wondering what the chances of doing likewise at Aurora and Newmarket may be. Bill Chriss, former Richmond Hill junior puckchaser, has developed into one of Toronto's best softball arbiters and he worked several of the international contests at the C.N.E. this year. Ken Holmesshaw, the well known hockey referee, also had a spot on the Ex sports card.

 Sangamo Electric has formed a new mixed league which will be starting a week from tonight, Thursday, Oct. 2, and Mount Al-
